

I listen to Airl which uses an FM translator service that is in danger due to Low Power FM (LPFM). It is THE only station I listen to on the radio and serves my needs as well as those of my family and several others in my community that I am aware of. The beauty of this station is that it serves a certain segment of the population and is able to provide high quality content to this segment based on its format.

The service provided by Airl is in the public interest of my community by providing a much needed/desired alternative to the typical radio stations otherwise available. This enables radio to serve all the diverse wants/needs of the community.

thank you!
